Market & Portfolio Developments

Market Review

June was a tough month. Inflation and rate hike fears continued to plunge markets across the board after what seemed like a breather last month. Global equities were down 8.40% and bonds, supposedly a safe haven asset, were down 3.21%. Only a few spots were green in a sea of red – trend-following alternatives was one area that witnessed positive returns.

Main Contributors 'What did well?'

China 'A' equities performed well as investors' sentiments around China's economic recovery improved after the Chinese government ended months of lock-downs. In addition, Healthcare remains an important relative contributor of returns having outperformed other positions within the portfolio and showing strong resilience to market declines.

Main Detractors 'What underperformed?'

European equities detracted from performance as news of a European Central Bank rate hike, alongside slowing business activity hit investor sentiment.

Portfolio Activity

Amid market volatility, the focus was on maintaining the integrity of our portfolio allocations.

Market Outlook

Inflation and interest rate hikes may have led many to predict an oncoming recession, but experienced investors know that such is the ebb and flow of the market cycle that rewards patience and preparation rather than timing market entries and exits. Investing in periods of market decline can be painful, but it provides investors with invaluable opportunities to achieve better future returns - only if they have patience and a long investment horizon.
