

Strategy Description

FAM Alternative Income Fund 'FAI' seeks stable and recurring income that is independent of market performance by investing opportunistically in truly alternative investments, instead of traditional income assets such as equities and bonds. The strategy focuses on performance drivers that make sense and are backed by empirical research.

Commentary

Market volatility persisted in May as the US debt ceiling garnered widespread media attention, fueling concerns about the US government's financial obligations and the possibility of a fallout event. Traditional global equity and investment grade bond markets were both down 1.01% and 1.95%, respectively.

In contrast, FAI remained unaffected by market volatility and continued to deliver positive returns of 1.04% over the course of the month – our 7th straight month of steady and positive income.

The current environment remains highly attractive for our positions in the uncorrelated insurance-linked segment, with their high yields already translating to a strong start to 2023.
