

FAM Alternative Income (SGD)

30 Jun 2025

Strategy Description

FAM Alternative Income Fund 'FAI' seeks stable and recurring income that is independent of market performance by investing opportunistically in truly alternative investments, instead of traditional income assets such as equities and bonds. The strategy focuses on performance drivers that make sense and are backed by empirical research.

Commentary

FAI posted a gain of +0.35% in June, marking its strongest monthly performance so far this year. This is in line with our earlier expectations that FAI's income generation would accelerate in the second half of 2024, particularly if a less than severe hurricane season persists. Indeed, it is also observed that over the past 20 years, performance in the second half of the year has been higher than the first half for our Insurance-Linked Securities (ILS) positions.

FAI's exposure to ILS are tied to infrequent but high-severity natural disasters - such as major hurricanes or earthquakes - rather than economic or geopolitical risks. This structural advantage allows FAI to provide our investors with a steady, uncorrelated income stream, even as others grapple with uncertainty around Trump tariffs and the impact on their investments.

This quarter's performance also reflects the benign catastrophe loss environment in 2025, with no major natural disaster triggering losses - thus preserving investor returns. Looking ahead, we expect this trend to continue as meteorologists have lowered their forecasts for the Atlantic hurricane season compared to last season.

Beyond ILS, we are actively expanding FAI's diversification into other alternative income segments. For instance, Royalties offer different sources of resilient income e.g. music, pharmaceuticals. These assets offer additional sources of uncorrelated yield, further insulating the strategy from market cycles. Music-royalties generate predictable, long-term cash flows tied to streaming and licensing demand, while Pharma-royalties generate income from medical formulas with proven commercial viability. These complement FAI's ILS exposure, enhancing its risk-adjusted return profile.

FAI's 12-month trailing returns stand at 6.2%. As context, current money market (MM) rate is 2.0%, meaning it continues to deliver meaningful yield pickup over cash equivalents. Since inception it has also compounded better than investment grade bonds with much lower volatility. This consistency underscores the strategy's role as a stabilizing component within a broader portfolio. As we move into the latter half of 2024, we remain focused on selective deployment into high-conviction alternative income opportunities, ensuring FAI maintains its track record of low volatility and uncorrelated high income.
